Broomhouse Common circular walk 6 miles

The line of stones that you see today is all that remains of a farm over 2000 years old.

This circular walk takes you over Broomhouse Common with wide views over the Tyne Valley and towards Hadrian's Wall.

The thick trunks and tangle of branches from the pollarded oaks (pictured above by the wall) near Broomhouse show how this timber was harvested in the past by cutting branches rather than felling the whole tree.
